

THE EVENING NEWS.

ORIGINAL HAWKEYE CO.—This company's claim is one of the oldest locations in this district, south of Gold Hill proper. It comprises what was a part of the old Hawkeye claim, which was located February 13th, 1860, and contained 2,100 feet. In September, 1862, some of the owners in the old company commenced proceedings for the segregation of the claim, and in June following the claim was duly segregated, and is now divided among three companies, known as the Central Hawkeye, the Hawkeye & Co., and this, the Original Hawkeye Company. This company, at the time of the segregation, had set off to it 1,116 feet from the north end of the old claim, and 119 feet and a fraction of a foot from the south end, giving it 1,235 feet and a fraction of a foot in all. Soon after the segregation was made, this company commenced work on its claim, and has continued to work with but little stop ever since. For the past five months the claim has been suffered to stand idle an hour. The company last winter commenced work in a shaft, which had been sunk down about eighty feet by the old company. This shaft is situated by the side of the American Flat and Virginia road, about 20 rods south of Crown Point Ravine, and is now down to the depth of 278 feet. When the company had sunk to the depth of 218 feet, it was prevented from going down any further by the large body of water which was struck at that level. The shaft was then in a ledge. It had been running down in the ledge for some distance, and there had been some water coming in all that time; but here appeared to be the level of a larger volume. The company at this point commenced a drift to run east, and has since run another one on the same level to the west. Both these drifts run some distance in quartz which is very compact and good quality. The drift which runs east is 340 feet in length. After it leaves the compact quartz in which the shaft is sunk, it runs in a mixed, broken-up mass of quartz, magnetite, porphyry and granite, until it comes to a clay wall, 103 feet from the shaft, which stands nearly perpendicular, and is supposed to be the east wall of the ledge. After passing immediately through this stratum, the drift runs in the same direction as the one below it. This drift is 53 feet long. There was some water struck in it, but not so large a quantity as in the lower one. The drift to the west of the main shaft is 110 feet in length. It runs a few feet in quartz, and then comes into a formation of trap, granite, and greenstone, through which it runs the remainder of the distance. The question may be suggested in the mind of some, why were these drifts run and money expended in doing all this work? When the company all the time knew that it had its ledge in the main shaft. It is sometimes necessary, in this land of litigation, to know that there is no other ledge within 300 or 400 feet of the ledge which the company is working, and it was to show the isolation of this ledge that these drifts were run. The company has not yet been mixed up in the litigation, and has been going on among its neighbors, and has taken the precaution to sink its mine in such a manner as to leave no doubt, if possible, on which to base litigation. It has drifted east 340 feet, and knows that its ledge is that distance from the Belcher Company, and in all probability it is considerably over a hundred feet more than the distance which the drift has been run from one ledge to the other. A few weeks ago, the company commenced sinking its shaft again, and went down as far as possible, by using its new winch and running its horses; but after sinking it a few feet in that way, the work had to be again suspended on account of the water, and it was allowed to rise for a few days until the Overman Company commenced hoisting water with its new machinery. When that company took the water out of its shaft, the water came down in this one, so that this company could commence sinking again in a few hours; and since the Overman has been using its pump, and sinking, this company has been sinking all the time, without any serious inconvenience on account of water. If the generally adopted theory that water follows a quartz ledge is correct, it is pretty certain that the Overman is working this company's ledge, and not the Belcher ledge, which is four by eight feet in size in the clear, unmined all the way down, and at present with four-inch timbers. It is divided by a partition into two compartments. When it has reached the depth of 800 feet, the company intends to drift east and west from its shaft, to show the thickness and quality of its ledge at that depth. The shaft is being sunk in a solid mass of white and fine silver-bearing quartz, and at that depth the company expects to find pay rock, and from present appearances we have no doubt it will. The mine is under the superintendence of Mr. Van Fleet, who is doing everything necessary to insure the successful opening of it at the earliest possible moment.

ANOTHER BRUTE MURDER.—Yesterday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, another one of those sickening accidents occurred in our town, which chills the blood to witness. A quartz wagon, heavily loaded, was descending Telegraph street, near the Yellow Jacket mine, by reason of an insecure brake, was suddenly thrown upon the poor team horses, two of which had each a leg and a foot crushed and ground to a broken mass, so that they had to be shot dead. The team was owned by a man named Carpenter, at Dayton, but had been entrusted to a driver. We have no means of knowing how culpable the teamster may have been, in the part he took in killing these poor dumb brutes, but as the team was entrusted to his care, the accident evidently occurred by reason of his carelessness or his incompetency to judge of the safety of the brake to his wagon. The horses were permitted to suffer with their crushed and mangled limbs from the time of the accident until this morning at seven o'clock, the driver not wishing to take the responsibility to kill them outright—the same as he evidently failed to take the responsibility to fix the brake, which might have prevented the accident. Owners of teams should be very careful not to hire drivers unless they know them to be competent. We shall publish the name of the next quartz-team driver who carelessly murders his horses—so that he may be "spotted."

GOLD QUARTZ.—We saw last evening at the San Francisco Restaurant some beautiful specimens of gold-bearing quartz from the Milton claim. It was rich enough with large spangles of gold to make beautiful quartz jewelry. There were also specimens of rich black sulphurets of silver from the same mine.

RECORDERS COURT—VIRGINIA CITY.—The following business was transacted before this Court this morning: Frenchman, arrested by officers Clarkson and McIntosh, for being d. d., was discharged. Fred Doe arrested on complaint of Dan Jones, for assault and battery, complaint withdrawn and case dismissed. C. C. Conner, arrested by Soule, for disturbing the peace, forfeited his bail of $25. H. W. Wheeler arrested by officer Purcell, for disturbing the peace, forfeited his bail of $25. Jas. O'Brien arrested by officer Downey, for disturbing the peace, was fined $30, and in default was committed for 10 days. Wm. Haggerty arrested by officers Bulger and Brinton, for being drunk and sleeping on the sidewalk, was fined $15 and in default was committed for 10 days. G. Lousier arrested on complaint of H. Miller for assault and battery, had his case continued until July 11th at 10 a. m. Pat. Holland arrested by officer Larkin, for fighting, had his trial to-day postponed. No jury was reserved till to-morrow. L. F. Beatty arrested on complaint of Pat. Holland, for assault, had his trial to-day and judgement was reserved till to-morrow.

THE HALE AND NORCROSS COMPANY has taken down its old hoisting works, removed its old engine, and cleared away where its shaft generally. In the place where its dingy and rickety old hoisting works stood, will soon be erected new ones, of the strongest kind and most approved style. The wood-work for the latter is already framed, and the machinery is on the ground. There will be two engines; one to drive the pump, the other to work the reels to do the hoisting. Both of these engines are of large size, and the one which is to drive the pump is larger than any engine yet employed in working a mine in this Territory. The smaller of these two engines is already set in its place. The foundation is laid for the larger one, and it will be set in a short time. In fact at the rate at which work is being carried on there; it will be ready to be set before all the machinery will be ready for operation.

The Bullion Company has lowered its pump, and with the exception of having a few lengths of pipe to be attached to it, it is ready for operation. There is no water to be hoisted at present, but the company is drifting at a greater depth than any of the claims in its vicinity are worked, and is expecting every day to strike a stream of water, which will give employment to the company's machinery, and a fine standing sill. A stream of water by no means coveted and sought for by this company in its mine, but the probability that it will have one to contend with is so great that the company has put in the pump, so as to be prepared to meet it whenever it does come.

LAFAYETTE COMPANY.—This company is sinking its shaft in hard rock, and is not going on so rapidly now as it was a short time ago, when it was in a much softer formation. Three shafts of work have been, however, employed and by work being carried on all the time, night and day, the company is enabled to carry the shaft down three or four feet per day despite the hardness of the rock. The company is having the work done well. The shaft is being substantially timbered, and is being constructed in such a manner as to be second to none in its neighborhood.

THE OREGON COMPANY is erecting the frame work of its hoisting works. The frame was nearly all up yesterday, and the timbers appear to fit to the scratch all around. The frame is built in the ordinary way, composed of timbers of more than common size, for such a purpose. The frame is of great strength and will be capable of standing the heavy strains which will be imposed upon it when work is commenced with the company's new 65 horse-power engine, without break or jar.

THE GENTS.—We were up in Virginia this morning for a short time, and having drawn a splendid gold pen in Wright's Gift Entertainment, we stopped at his office. Oh, what a lot of gold and silver presents he has yet on hand to be distributed to the lucky ticket-holders! Enough to set up a jewelry store. All who have drawn prizes can have them by presenting their tickets. Hope Mr. Wright will get up another Prize Gift Entertainment.

QUEST.—Around the Police Court today has hung a solemn silence. No drunken sleeper in the midnight mountain air, no inebriate oratorical or belligerent, no despoiler of the gods or goods of other men, appeared to replenish the public treasury by fine, or mend the highway by involuntary toil. Peace and poverty lie down together—dull times and morality kiss each other.

The shaft of the Crown Point Ravine Company is now down about 55 feet. The workmen have come into hard rock, and are unable to go down as rapidly with the shaft as they have done heretofore. The ground has been so firm all the way down that they have not found it necessary to timber it all yet, and have not done so, although the timbers for that purpose are on the ground.

BULLION.—The bullion shipment this morning was 14 bars, weighing 840 lbs., and valued at $19,384.27.

FREEDOM OF OPINION.—Freedom of opinion! Surely, air, opinion is the breath of our nation. It is the privilege of every citizen, by the freedom of speech, the protection of every blessing. It is opinion which creates our rulers. It is opinion that nerves or paralyzes their arm. It is opinion which casts down tyrants and elevates the humble. It is the fluctuations are the rise and fall of parties; its currents bear the nation on to prosperity or ruin. Its free play is the condition of its purity. It is like the ocean, whose tide rises and falls day by day at the bidding of the moon; yet it is the great scientific level from which every height is measured—the horizon to which astronomers refer the motion of the stars. But, like the ocean, it is subject to storms, and its stillness is the condition of its stability. Those depths of opinion are not free, and it is they that are touched by the winds which have moved the House. Men must not commit treason and say its guilt is matter of opinion, and its punishment a violation of its integrity. Men cannot swear to maintain the integrity of the nation, and avow their intention to destroy it, and cover that double crime with the search for money and values. He remonstrated with his captors at such treatment, when they threatened him with incarceration in the "black hole." This conduct contrasted with the kind treatment extended to the rebel Generals Johnson and Stewart, who were recently captured by our troops.

When Gen. Hickman arrived in Richmond he was seized by the prison guards and his search for money and values. He remonstrated with his captors at such treatment, when they threatened him with incarceration in the "black hole." This conduct contrasted with the kind treatment extended to the rebel Generals Johnson and Stewart, who were recently captured by our troops.

The skin of the Aztec, which is so much the fashion in Paris, and is so excessively dear, is procured in all its beauty by killing the black sheep that is bearing young, and skinning the lamb thus untimely born, and then renders beautiful by the use of the Japanese lately compared the English to the most barbaric nations of the earth. They had not heard of this fashion of les Français, we presume.

The Pacific Railroad—The Amended Bill Passed.

The people of this Territory are deeply interested in all that concerns the Pacific Railroad. The recent action of Congress in the matter has been already briefly announced, but the following article from the Call of Thursday last, contains more full intelligence upon the subject than anything that has appeared in the Territorial papers:

When the Pacific Railroad Bill had been passed by Congress, it was generally esteemed a generous one. It granted the Government's credit and large extent of land, to ensure the construction. But the Company organized under the franchise were not satisfied with the bonus. They applied for additional aid through Congressional action, and it has been granted. The following dispatch was received in this city yesterday:

WASHINGTON, July 2, 1865.

To Land Standard—Railroad bill passed. It gives one year more on first fifty miles; twenty-five miles thereafter forfeit is required. No payment to be kept back. Gives double amount of land. Allows a first mortgage on the road of equal amount to the Government, making the Government mortgage second. Old bill regarding the eas was not to be done to anything for the road between Sacramento and San Francisco. C. P. HUNTINGTON.

The great difficulties in the way of constructing the road through the Sierras, eastward from Sacramento, required more time than the original act allowed, and the amended bill gives one year additional for the first fifty miles. The full amount of bonds is to be advanced to the company, to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first bill recognized the Company of which Governor Stanford was and is President, to whom the construction of the road and the mortgage on the same were entrusted. This makes the Company's bonds negotiable at once, and ought to ensure the construction of the road. These grants are certainly generous, and show a friendly disposition on the part of Congress. The first